Governing Affect Roberto E. Barrios, 2017 Roberto E Barrios presents an ethnographic study of the aftermaths of four natural disasters: southern Honduras after Hurricane Mitch, New Orleans following Hurricane Katrina, Chiapas Mexico after the Grijalva River landslide and southern Illinois following the Mississippi River flood. Focusing on the role of affect, Barrios examines the ways in which people who live through disasters use emotions as a means of assessing the relevance of governmentally sanctioned recovery plans, judging the effectiveness of such programs and reflecting on the risk of living in areas that have been deemed prone to disaster. Emotions such as terror, disgust or sentimental attachment to place all shape the meanings we assign to disasters as well as our political responses to them. The ethnographic cases in Governing Affect highlight how reconstruction programs, government agencies and recovery experts often view postdisaster contexts as opportune moments to transform disaster affected communities through principles and practices of modernist and neoliberal development. Governing Affect brings policy and politics into dialogue with human emotion to provide researchers and practitioners with an analytical toolkit for apprehending and addressing issues of difference, voice and inequity in the aftermath of catastrophes.

Black Feminist Anthropology Irma McClaurin, 2001 In the discipline's early days, anthropologists by definition were assumed to be white and male. Women and black scholars were relegated to the field's periphery. From this marginal place, white feminist anthropologists have successfully carved out an acknowledged intellectual space identified as feminist anthropology. Unfortunately, the works of black and non-western feminist anthropologists are rarely cited and they have yet to be respected as significant shapers of the direction and transformation of feminist anthropology. In this volume, Irma McClaurin has collected for the first time essays that explore the role and contributions of black feminist anthropologists. She has asked her contributors to disclose how their experiences as black women have influenced their anthropological practice in Africa, the Caribbean and the United States and how anthropology has influenced their development as black feminists. Every chapter is a unique journey that enables the reader to see how scholars are made. The writers present material from their own fieldwork to demonstrate how these experiences were shaped by their identities Finally each essay suggests how the author s field experiences have influenced the theoretical and methodological choices she has made throughout her career Not since Diane Wolf s Feminist Dilemmas in the Field or Hortense Powdermaker s Stranger and Friend have we had such a breadth of women anthropologists discussing the critical and personal issues that emerge when doing ethnographic research

The Mermaid and the Lobster Diver Laura Hobson Herlihy, 2012-04-12 Approximately 90 percent of Miskitu boys and men in the Rio Platanero Biosphere Reserve along the north coast of Honduras have worked as deepwater divers in the lobster industry and their participation has left an indelible imprint on their society While lobster diving is lucrative it is also a life threatening occupation and many divers have been injured or killed from decompression sickness locally referred to as liwa mairin siknis Mermaid sickness According to Miskitu folklore the Mermaid is the main water spirit owner of all fresh and saltwater resources and capable of punishing male divers for extracting too many of her lobsters Wary of the wrath of the supernatural liwa mairin these men face another threat on shore Miskitu women who use sexual magic praidi saihka as a tool to control men s wages and ensure that they continue to provide them with money Interspersed with short stories songs and incantations The Mermaid and the Lobster Diver demonstrates the archetypes of femininity and masculinity within Miskitu society highlighting the power associated with women s sexuality as manifested in both goddess and human form and the vulnerable position of men

Black Feminist Anthropology, 25th Anniversary Edition Irma McClaurin, 2024-11-15 Black Feminist Anthropology: Theory, Politics, Praxis, and Poetics is a groundbreaking collection that centers the imaginative intellectual perspectives, voices, and experiences of Black American feminist anthropologists Twenty five years ago as the Foreword states this book dared to put three words together in the title Black Feminist Anthropology that have not always kept company with each other and in the minds of many both in and outside of the academy they should remain separate Standing the test of time it is still a bold reimagining of anthropology and all social sciences as inclusive and decolonized while establishing a new Black feminist anthropology canon that decades later is too often taken for granted as normative Black Feminist Anthropology is filled with a message of theoretical possibilities that anyone who enters its pages will find healing, life saving, and an affirmation that Black women anthropologists have contributed much to the theory, politics, praxis, and poetics of anthropology, gender, and women s studies, masculinity studies, queer studies, the social sciences generally, and any other discipline that seeks transformation from the inside out It is both an archive and a legacy for the next generation

Native Tours Erve Chambers, 2019-06-20 Previous editions of Native Tours provided a much needed overview and analysis of anthropology's contributions to tourism as an emerging field of study. Such a cultural perspective illuminated key ideas surrounding worldwide host-guest relations and informed discussions of political and economic influences and the impacts, both negative and positive, of tourism as one of the world's largest industries. Applying a characteristically uncluttered, authoritative writing style alongside an exceptional command of the relevant literature, Chambers updates, refines, and extends his earlier work. He retains a focus on the social, cultural, economic, and environmental consequences of tourism and provides a framework for understanding tourism initiatives in their particular circumstances. Three detailed case studies originating in the American Southwest, the Tirolean Alps, and Belize illustrate the varied costs and benefits of tourism.

The Power of Greed Michael Rosberg, 2005-08-16 The Power of Greed recommends a shift away from the moralistic way we often go about doing international development. It says we can be too focused on our own ambitions for others and too unaware of what they're up to on their own behalf. It argues that the desperate and greedy behaviours of the poor and their oppressors are not the enemies of international development but its potential allies. It also says we ought to resist taking sides in defence of the poor. Productive alliances between oppressed and oppressor are possible if the conditions are right. Furthermore, it says that we need to tie national institutional and economic strengthening measures to the creation of sustainable interest groups at the grassroots. Only they could be in a position to prevent greed and corruption at the top in a sustainable way. For these reasons, The Power of Greed tries to get us to focus on doing more about the opportunity structure in the developing world and for the rest to rely on the opportunism of the population.
